 A moose moved to a new forest.
He decided to go meet the other animals.

He met a squirrel running on a branch.
“I bet you’re good at climbing trees,”
said the squirrel.

“I can’t climb trees with hooves like these,” said the moose.

He met a beaver at the stream.
“You could build a big dam,”
said the beaver.

 “I can swim, but I can’t build a dam,”
replied the moose.

 He met a bear fishing nearby.
“Would you like some fish?”
asked the bear.

“Thank you, but I only eat plants and twigs,” said the moose.

He almost stepped on a mole on the ground.

“You must sleep in a big hole,” said the mole.

 “No, I sleep on the ground,”
replied the moose.

He saw a bird flying in the sky.
“Use your wings to fly up here,”
called the bird.

 “My antlers aren’t wings, and I can’t fly,” the moose called back.

The moose was getting more and more upset.

None of the other animals seemed to understand him.

Then he met some deer playing in a clearing.

“I love your big antlers,”
said one deer.

“Would you like some leaves?”
asked another.

“Come play with us!” said a third.

They played together until they fell asleep in the grass.

The moose decided he was going to like his new home.
